Year IV., No. 33. GLEICHEN, ALBERTA, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1910. $1.50 Per Year

SURVEYORS ARRIVE TO START SURVEY OF THE BLACKFOOT RESERVE

The Survey of Over 115,000 Acres of the Choicest Land in Alberta to be Completed in a Few Weeks

W. H. Waddell arrived last Friday from Edmonton with instructions from the Dominion Government under the Department of Indian Affairs, to survey the big block of land surrendered by the Blackfoot Indians last June. He has since completed his arrangements, and yesterday left with his party of surveyors to commence the work.

When seen by the Call Mr. Waddell said he could not say how long it would take to complete the survey as it depended upon the weather conditions and many other things. Besides he understood another party of engineers were being sent to assist in the work, and he was not aware just when they would arrive. He intimated that he knew nothing about the matter further than that he had received instructions to survey the land into quarter sections and that he was prepared and anxious to complete the work as quickly as possible.

The land surrendered by the Indians south of Gleichen amounts to 115,000 acres of the very best land in Alberta, and is estimated in value to be worth over $2,000,000. Fully 95 per cent. of this land is level, clean prairie of the richest sort, and is to be offered for sale by public auction so soon as the survey is completed, and the land can be catalogued and extensively advertised.

The Call has made arrangements with Inspector Markle to supply all those desirous of receiving the catalogues, to forward them as soon as published, if only the names and addresses are sent to this office.

C.P.I.C. CO[illegible] ARRANGING NEW CANAL PLANS

NEW MANAGEMENT AND FULL STAFF

W. C. Peterson General Manager

Company Making Big Expenditures to Enlarge and Make Canal Meet the Farmers Requirements

The Canadian Pacific Irrigation Colonization Co. have designed an entirely new policy for their big irrigation project in the Bow Valley as a result of the experience gained during the past season and already have started work that will require many thousands of dollars to complete. The main canal and laterals are being deepened and widened out and strengthened all the way through past Gleichen. Several hundred teams are all ready employed on the work and every farmer who can supply a team is being asked to hire them to the company. The work will be continued as long as the weather will permit, but the work now on hand is only the initial steps in the plans of the future.

One day last week The Call man visited C.W. Peterson at his office in Calgary and in the course of conversation that gentleman stated that his company had been studying the effects of the past dry season on their irrigation system very closely with the result that it was found necessary to make many changes in order to give the farmers the very best system that can be obtained. Mr. Peterson admitted that his company from the first anticipated that as the work proceeded it would develop that some changes would be necessary, as every country has its peculiarities and only the actual use of the [illegible] would insure its success. The company to assert in how to obtain the best results.

He said that to obtain the best and lasting results from the system would require a very great expenditure, but as this was the object of the company the work would be done regardless of the cost.

Mr. Peterson went on to say that with a view to this end it was deemed necessary to even re-organize the the staff both of the company officials and the working staff. Mr. Dennis had found it occupied a great deal more of his time on irrigation matters than he could spare from his many other duties, and that he had appointed Mr. Peterson to take charge as general manager of the C.P.I.C.Co.

In view of this Mr. Peterson expects to leave this week to spend sometime in the southwestern states to study irrigation and while away he hopes to obtain the services of a number of irrigation experts, who will some here to give the company the advantage of their experience and knowledge in irrigation.

Gleichen Hockey Club

A very successful meeting of the hockey players was held in the office of Messrs. McKie and Henderson on Friday evening, the 28th inst.

The meeting was opened by F. H. Blackbourne taking the chair, and then the election of officers for the Gleichen Hockey Club for the ensuing year were elected. The following is the enrollment of the club's officers:

Messrs. E. Grieshach, Hon. President; W. McCammon, President; T. Henderson, Vice - President; W. H. McKie, Sec.-Treas.; B. S. Corey, F. H. Blackbourne, W. R. McKie, Managing Committee.

Mr. McCammon then took the chair and the meeting was opened for discussions.

The question of a suitable rink was brought before the meeting, and on a motion of W. McKibbin, Mr. Grieshach was called upon to give his views.

Mr. Grieshach stated that he was prepared to build a suitable rink on the property adjoining the Gleichen Opera House, providing Mr. Till refused to extend the present rink and make it suitable for hockey purposes.

It was decided to correspond with Mr. Till, and to have a definite proposition to put before the meeting to be held about the 4th of November.

The question of a benefit dance was discussed and approved of, complete arrangements for which will be made at the next meeting.

General hockey questions were then discussed, and a membership list was started, the membership fee of $1 was fixed by motion, and eighteen members were enrolled.

Messrs. McKibbin and Davies were appointed a membership committee.

The meeting then adjourned.

Social Dance

On Thanksgiving Night, in the Gleichen Opera House, a most successful social dance was held by the Church of England in aid of the building funds of the Young Men's Institute. The attendance was large there being about 118 couples present. A splendid program of dances was rendered and judging by the enthusiasm in which they were entered into, all were thoroughly enjoyed. Between the dances excellent numbers of songs, duets and instrumental solos were rendered and very much appreciated. One thing was noticeable, that there is no dearth of musical talent in Gleichen, and the quality of the voices much above the average, which is saying a great deal for a town of Gleichen's proportions. Mr. and Mrs. Wooster, of Nanaska, gave a song and duet, and had to respond to an encore. Misses Page, Carrie Alexander, Elder, and Marion Baird rendered solos in good voice and tasteful expression, Messrs. T. F. Rowe and Hamerton sang a duet in good style, and also acquitted themselves in solos. Mr. Cronkite was in excellent voice, and Mr. T. F. Fisher kept the audience in the humor. Mrs. and Miss Brosseau executed a pianoforte solo in a brilliant style. The first encores were in all cases asked for proves the appreciation accorded. At midnight an enjoyable supper was served, after which dancing was indulged in with a 'swing' until the early hours. A hearty vote of thanks is accorded to all who assisted in making this social the great success it was.

What nearly proved to be a serious accident, was the result of a practical joke on Hallowe'en, at the Church of England social. The seating accommodation for the Opera House not having arrived the contractors for the building were entrusted to erect benches around the dance hall; but when the seats became occupied by the ladies they collapsed, giving the occupants a severe shock and fright. Those who erected the seats state that someone had drawn out the nails. Whoever the person or persons were who could be guilty of such a mean, contemptible and cowardly act towards the ladies should endeavor in the future to rack their empty, air-brained heads to gather what atoms of decency may be left them that their future actions may somewhat atone for this dastardly attempt at untold injury.

A very pretty wedding took place Tuesday evening, Nov. 1st, in Gleichen, when Mr. John A. Emmerichs of this place and Miss L. B. Christie of Toronto were united in the bonds of matrimony by the Rev. Mr. T. W. Leslie. Mr. Angus McLay acting as best man and Miss Mills as bridesmaid, while Mr. O. G. Calquhoun gave the bride away. After the ceremony the popular couple were twice serenaded by musicians of the town, whom they royally entertained. Mr. Emmerichs is the electrician of Palace Hotel plant, whose obliging manner has made him popular with all visitors there. The bride is a half sister of Mr. Calquhoun's and spent about a year at the Circle ranch visiting him before leaving for the east last year. The Call joins the numerous friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Emmerichs every happiness.

Mr. Cope, of Calgary, was on a visit for a few day this week to Mr. and Mrs. McCammon.

GOVERNMENT WILL BE ASKED TO APPOINT A RANCHING COMMISSION

Farmers and All Classes of Business men now Realize that the Ranching Industry Cannot be Allowed to Pass

It is understood that an effort is being made with good prospects of success to get the Alberta Government to appoint a commission to inquire into the ranching industry of this province.

During the past few years Landreds of ranchers have sold out their stock and quit the business entirely and the few remaining have been crowded out to such an extent that they are preparing to close up their business as rapidly as circumstances will permit. This is now fully recognized and it is seen that it will be a detriment to all classes of business in the province and more especially to the farmers. Consequently those who once thought it an advantage to see the ranching industry pass away now see their error and are doing all in their power to revive the fast waning industry. The Call was the first newspaper in this province in which the warning was given full ventilation by the ranchers and it is hardly necessary to again go into all the arguments of the case in these columns at the present time. However, as this matter seems to become a very live question it may be [illegible] to ask our readers to carefully stu by the situation [illegible] ey do not consider it their duty to do all in the [illegible] er to foster the "passing industry."

TO STUDY CONDITIONS

ROYAL COMMISSION TO HOLD SESSIONS IN ALBERTA

The Royal Commission on Industrial Training and Technical Education to Hold Sessions in Alberta this Month—Will Visit Many Leading Cities in Alberta and British Columbia.

Calgary.—The royal commission on industrial training and Technical education, of which James W. Robertson, C.M.G., D.Sc., LL.D., is chairman, will hold sessions in Calgary commencing Nov. 19.

The commission will give particular attention to the manufacturing industries, to agriculture, to domestic occupations, to the fisheries, to the lumber interests, to the building trades, to the transportation services, as well as to the technical training required for commercial operations. It will also make inquiries into the needs of existing industries in respect of labor, the quality of labor which is available, and the needs of such labor for industrial training and technical education.

The commission is composed of James W. Robertson, chairman; Hon. John Neville Armstrong, Rev. George Bryce, Gaspard D. Serres, Gilbert M. Murray, B.A.; David Forsyth, B.A.; and James Simpson. The itinerary includes Port Arthur, Fort William, Winnipeg, Portage la Prairie, Brandon, Moose Jaw, Regina, Saskatoon, Prince Albert, Strathcona, Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Vancouver, Nanaimo, Victoria, Fernie, Nelson and Vernon.

Among the questions which will be asked and the information required by the commission are—the number of schools, colleges, or other institutions where any industrial training or technical education is carried on; the names of important industries; the board of trade or chamber of commerce; the number of public libraries; the names of any institutions for physical training, or any other information that parties interested may see fit to volunteer.

The work of the commission is not intended to be confined to the Dominion of Canada, but will also inquire into the systems and methods of technical instruction obtained in other countries, particularly Great Britain, France, Germany and the United States. When compiled this information will be published in a report and will be available for general distribution, and at the disposal of the different governments or bodies desiring to refer to it with the object of improving the local conditions.

PHOTOGRAPHING PRISONERS

Inspector of Dominion Police Started on the Work at Edmonton Penitentiary

Edmonton.—The inspector of Dominion police, E. Foster, with his assistant, T. P. Quinn, began the work of taking the photographs and thumb prints of all the prisoners in the penitentiary recently. Mr. Foster takes all the photographs personally and also the thumb prints, and as there are at present 169 prisoners, it will be ten days or a fortnight before the work is finished. Mr. Foster is on his way back from Vancouver where he assisted the police in the Chinese immigration problem.

The Edmonton penitentiary is the last that he will visit, going from here back to Ottawa. The photographs and thumb prints are being taken for the purpose of establishing a Canadian criminal identification bureau at Ottawa.

CHRISTMAS WARNING

Several Countries Will Not Tolerate Charity Stamps in Their Mails

Washington.—The first official note of the approach of Christmas has just appeared when the post office department issued a warning to all postmasters that Portugal, Guatamela and Uruguay refuse to admit to their mails articles bearing non-postage Christmas stamps or other adhesive charity stamps or labels. Portugal's objection, however, is limited to such stamps as resemble postage stamps. Other countries, such as Great Britain, Germany, British East Africa and a host of British dependencies will admit articles bearing such stamps when the stamps are affixed to the reverse and not to the address side.

Expect Lumber Trust

London.—A large number of British Columbia financiers are in London seeking support for several lumber propositions. It is understood that the organization of a Dominion lumber trust is still in the air. It is feared, however, that many will be disappointed, especially as certain recent excellent lumber issues have not met with success. The next Canadian issue will probably be the Toronto 4 per cent. loan.

Want Prayers in English and Dutch

Capetown. — Onsland, the Dutch paper here, says that as both English and Dutch are recognized as official languages in the new confederation of South Africa, the session of parliament should be opened with prayers in both languages. The Onsland refers to Canada where sessions are opened on alternate days with English and French prayers. It advocates a similar proceedure here.

Sale of School Lands

Edmonton.—Over a quarter of a million dollars' worth of school lands were disposed of recently at Vermilion by W. M. Ingram, of Winnipeg, Dominion inspector of school lands, at the sale here. As yet no official figures have been compiled, but it is estimated that $260,000 worth of lands were disposed of.

Altogether, 155 quarter sections in Vermilion district were sold.

English Boys for Our Navy

London.—Fifteen boys from the training ship Exmouth have been selected to join the Canadian navy.

NATIONALIZE RAILWAYS

Signs That All the English Roads May Be Put Under Government Direction

London.—There are signs here that point at a coming nationalization of English railroads. The army of railroad employees want it with all their heart and the actions of the railroad companies themselves are hastening its coming. Following the example of the American roads the railroads of England have formed combines and signed working agreements and even in a country as conservative as England it is generally admitted, that this grouping of the roads will eventually give them such monopoly and power that the suffering public will demand that the State must own them as it now owns the telegraph and telephone service.

At the recent congress of British railroad employees a resolution was almost unanimously carried that they must encourage the coming of State Ownership by every means within their power, and also that they must see, too, that they are adequately represented in the House of Commons when the change comes. Not one member expressed a doubt that come it must.

TO ADVANCE TRADE

Speeches Reached a high Level of Excellence at the British Chamber of Commerce Dinner

London.—There was a large and influential gathering at the Bristol Chamber of Commerce dinner to welcome the Chambers of Commerce commission recently sent to Canada. The speeches reached a high level of excellence. All the speakers dwelt upon the great possibilities of the extension of trade between Canada and the mother country and the desire of the colonists to promote it in every way. H. W. Just, who recently visited the Dominion, responding to the toast, "Our Empire," specially referred to Commissioner Griggs' valuable work in the interests of British trade. Mr. Griggs had done much to foster British trade with the Dominion and he understood the Bristol deputation was much impressed with the value of Griggs' assistance and advice. Mr. Just corroborated all he said. The deputation reported great possibilities of Canada as a market and said the inhabitants were enthusiastic over the subject.

THE POPE VERY MUCH PLEASED

Cardinal Vannutelli Makes His Report on the Eucharistic Congress

Rome.—The Pope recently gave a private audience to Cardinal Vannutelli, who recently returned from his mission in America, where he was the Papal legate to the Eucharistic Congress at Montreal.

The cardinal described the congress as notably successful, and said the Catholic church occupied a leading position there. The Catholics are at once staunch, patriotic citizens and zealous churchmen, and so constituted a strong guarantee of order and an efficacious barrier against subversive elements. The Pontiff was much pleased at the recital of the legate, whose journey, His Holiness said, he followed with interest.

COMPETITIVE LINE THREATENED

Vancouver Papers Urge Grant of Subsidy to Steamship Line

Vanocuver, B. C.—The press of Vancouver is urging that as the existence of the Canadian-Australian steamship line is threatened by the establishment of a competitive line from San Francisco to New Zealand the Dominion government should award a five years' contract for a mail subsidy on the Canadian route. Tenders for Canadian, New Zealand, Australian ocean mail carrying service will be opened by the department of trade and commerce at Ottawa on November 1. Vancouver merchants declare that a five-year contract is necessary to insure a first-class service.

Alberta Appeal Will Come Soon

London.—The appeals in the action of the minister of public works for the province of Alberta vs. the C. P. R. and the attorney general of Saskatchewan, and the King vs. the C. P. R. and the attorney general of Saskatchewan have been set down for hearing before the judicial committee of the privy council.

Judgment will be given in the following cases: Bank of Montreal vs. Stuart, Standard Ideal Co. vs. Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Co., and the Burrard Power Co. vs. the King.

Canalejas Stakes Head on Monarchy

Madrid, Spain.—Premier Canalejas, of Spain, has staked his head that the liberty party does not duplicate the Lisbon scenes in Madrid, or in any other part of the country. The Republicans, after learning of the offer, declare the premier will certainly lose his head, and that before long, "I will answer with my head that the Lisbon scenes are not duplicated in Spain," is the word Premier Canalejas has given to the public.

Two New Members Sworn In

Edmonton.—Hon. C. R. Mitchell, attorney general and minister of education, and A. J. McArthur were formally sworn by Lieut. Gov. Bulyea at Governemnt house as members of the provincial legislature for the constituencies of Medicine Hat and Gleichen, respectively.

Daring Aeronauts in Montreal

Montreal.—Augustus Post and Alan R. Hawley, the balloonists, about whom so many inquiries were being made a week ago, continued their journey as far as this city. They were met here by a representative of the Automobile and Aro club and were entertained by the president and directors of that organization at breakfast.

Commission Starts Western Tour

Port Arthur, Ont.—The Technical Education Commission commences its Western tour here on Tuesday, and will be entertained by committees representing the city council, board of trade and board of education.

WILL DEPORT AGITATOR

VANCOUVER HINDOO WILL BE SENT TO HONOLULU

Federal Authorities Apprehend a Hindoo at Coast City, Who Was in Possession of Information Regarding Many Deadly Explosives—Had Addresses of Agitators Against British Rule.

Vancouver, B. C.—Comprehensive notes respecting the handling and treatment of nitro-gycerine with frequent references to dynamite, iron retorts, acids, therostats and their paraphernalia, well-known to the chemistry of high explosives, were found on the person of H. Rahim, an ex-Mohammedan, arrested by the federal immigration authorities of Vancouver, who have instructions from Ottawa to deport him to Honolulu on November 14.

Rahim also carried in a note book containing his information regarding deadly explosives, the names and addresses of a number of well-known agitators against British rule in India. The names were those of agitators residing in the United States, France, Egypt, South Africa and India.

So interesting was all this information to J. H. MacGill, federal immigration agent at this port, that he took charge of Rahim's little book for further investigation and it is possible that by this time the Ottawa authorities are in possession of a synopsis of the data compiled by this man, who is held to have been illegally in Canada for several months.

Rahim, who describes himself as manager of the Canadian-Indian Supply and Trust company, a concern with offices on the south side of Hastings street, between Carrall street and Columbia avenue, was arrested by the immigration authorities following the receipt of instructions from Ottawa that he should be deported at the earliest possible opportunity.

C. N. R. NEARING CALGARY

Constructions Trains Are Now Running Across the Red Deer River

Calgary.—There is, after all, a strong probability that the whistle of a Canadian Northern railway locomotive may be heard within the city limits of Calgary before the New Year.

The grading of the line is now practically completed to within a short distance of the Bow river and the contractors are just finishing some small gaps before winter sets in.

The work of laying the steel is being rushed ahead along the R[illegible] and has already progressed a considerable distance towards Calgary this side of the Red Deer river. [illegible] work can be carried on all winter with the exception of cold, stormy days.

The construction trains [illegible] running across the Red [illegible] bridge for some time, distributing steel for the tracklayers.

All this is evidence that the C. N. R. is anxious to reach Calgary and secure a share of the freight and passenger traffic at the very earliest possible moment.

PRESIDENT TAFT TO RUN IN 1912

Senator Root Makes Strong Appeal to Republicans to Support N. Y. Candidate

New York.—"If Mr. Taft continues to make as good a president as he is making now, he will be the natural and inevitable candidate of his party in 1912, unless one thing happens—that the people of the United States shall repudiate Mr. Taft by such a crushing and overwhelming defeat of his party that it will be apparent that Mr. Taft cannot be re-elected."

This was the statement made by United States Senator Elihu Root, in a speech at the Manhattan casino. It was his first speech since the Saratoga convention, and it had been hinted at that he would have something to say about the Republican party's national policy involved in the New York state campaign.

ONE THOUSAND DROWNED

Terrible Disaster Caused by the Sudden Rising of the Han River, China

Victoria, B. C.—One thousand persons were drowned at Chenkiang, China, early this month, following a rise of the Han river. Large areas in the Chenkiang and Menyung districts were submerged. News of the disaster was brought here by the steamer Kamakura Maru.

Yokohoma was inundated when the ship left that city two weeks ago. Rain had fallen for seventeen days and three thousand houses were uninhabitable.

The Azakura, Honjo, Shitaka and Vanfunguya districts so greatly flooded last August were again under water.

NO GRAIN SHORTAGE

As a Result of Last Year's Overhauling Nothing Serious This Year

Ottawa.—It is stated by the department of trade and commerce that there are no serious complaints of grain shortage between terminal elevators at Port Arthur and Fort William and Georgian Bay lake ports. As a result of complaints made last year all scales were overhauled and other precautions taken with satisfactory results. Mr. David Horn, the chief inspector of grain at Winnipeg, who recently resigned will retire on Nov. 1. The work will be carried on by Thos. Horn, senior, who is in service at Winnipeg and who will probably succeed to the post.

Mr. Clary is in Charge

Edmonton.—L. F. Clarry, now deputy attorney general for the province, has taken charge of the office at the government buildings, and A. Y. Blain, who has been acting in that capacity since the resignation of Sydney B. Woods, has returned to his former duties as inspector of legal offices.

$2,000,000 LOST IN VICTORIA FIRE

Firemen and Militia Had Great Difficulty in Keeping the Flames Under Control

Victoria, B. C.—The fire which started in Spencer's department store swept through the heart of the city's business section. It wiped out several of the finest buildings, and caused a loss roughly estimated at from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000. Huge fire brands floated on the high wind which swept towards the water front, and it was with difficulty that the firemen, aided by the militia and by the garrison at work Point barracks, kept the flames from sweeping a broad path to the water's edge.

Many blazing embers were carried out over the water, endangering shipping in the harbor. Several unprotected yachts, indeed, caught fire and burned like floating beacons in the bay. The alarm was given about 10.30 o'clock, and as a wind was blowing hard it was realized that the firemen had a big fight on their hands. The brigade had been recently reorganized and it found itself unable to cope with the conflagration, which was spreading with great rapidity. The troops were then called out, and they not only aided in keeping order among the frightened, half-clad crowds, but manned the fire apparatus and helped the brigade to fight the flames.

PREVENT RUSSIAN GOING BACK

Subscriptions for the Defence of Foderenko Now Amounts to $3,000

Winnipeg.—At a meeting of about 200 members of the Russian Freedom league, it was announced that subscriptions for defence of Fodorenko, who is under sentence for extradition, now amounted to $3,000. Money is coming in from all sides, but principally from the labor organizations. The league recommended to the Trades and Labor council that W. H. Hooke, who is a letter carrier and prospective alderman, be sent to all labor centres in Canada and the United States to place the position of Fodorenko before the people. It is also announced that the Trades and Labor council is seeking the sanction of the Dominion trades and labor council for a Fodorenko propaganda.

CONTROL WATER-POWER

The Alberta Government Will Be Asked to Develop Resources of the Province

Edmonton, Alta.—Edmonton is to endeavor to effect a co-operation with the other towns and cities of the province in bringing influence to bear on the provincial government to take unto its control the water power re[illegible]s of the province and to develop for the benefit of the municipali[illegible] according to a resolution passed [illegible]e city council recently, and was introduced by Ald. Hynd[illegible] The scheme as outlined is in [illegible]e the same as that which has been recommended to Ontario by the hydro-electric commission. It is proposed that the matter be brought to the attention of the secretary of union of Alberta municipalities, who it is expected will arrange a committee composed of delegates from the various Alberta municipalities to lay the matter before the legislature.

RAINBOW'S TRIP ALMOST OVER

Will be Received by Officials of the Navy Department on Arrival

Ottawa.—C. J. Desbarets, deputy minister of naval affairs; Admiral Kingsmill and Commander Roper leave this week for Victoria, B. C., to receive the cruiser Rainbow, which is scheduled to arrive there on November 7.

Hon. Mr. Templeman may go also to represent the government, but has not yet decided definitely.

The Rainbow will at once go into quarters at Esquimault, B. C.

The government will present the cruiser with a handsome service of silver plate.

Had Trying Experience

Athabasca Landing.—J. K. Cornwall, M.P.P., for Peace River, accompanied by Mrs. Cornwall and twelve passengers, arrived here recently by open boat from the north after a hard trip. While coming down Little Slave river, the steamer Northland struck a rock, but before settling was beached, where she sunk in five feet of water. The steamer is now resting easily on the mud bottom. No lives were lost. The damage to the steamer was light and no freight was lost.

Farmers and Labor Men to Unite

Winnipeg.—A. E. Partridge and Mr. Knowles, of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' association, met the trades and labor executive, and discussed the desirability of co-operation between the farmers' organization and the labor organizations. It is stated that there is every probability of reapproachment, their interests being largely identical.

Good Yield of Oats

Calgary.—The crops at the C. P. R. demonstration farm at Strathmore proved up to expectations, the Swedish select variety oats, which Prof. Elliot introduced from Montana, yielding 110 bushels to the acre. This proved beyond all doubt that this class of oats is well suited to Alberta's climate. In Montana they are grown at an altitude of 4,700 feet. At the farm, too, two rowed barley went 48¾ bushels to the acre.

Hundreds Fall in Civil War

Rome.—Despatches received here recently from Adid Abbeba, the capital of Abyssinia, report that civil war is being carried on there and that hundreds have fallen. The factions engaged are followers of Empress Taitu on one hand, and the army of Lidj Jassu, the youthful emperor, stepgrandchild of the empress, on the other.

Building Wireless Station

Port Arthur, Ont.—The construction of a station for the Marconi Wireless Telegraph company was commenced the other day.

BRING MANY SETTLERS

C. N. R. WILL ENGAGE IN IMMIGRATION WORK

Stated Company Will Enter Energetically into Business of Importing Settlers from the Old Country—Agent to Interview Alberta Government—Organizing Active Campaign for this Winter.

Calgary.—D. Howell, formerly chief immigration agent of the Salvation army, and now serving in a similar capacity under the colors of the Canadian Northern railway company, passed through this city recently, en route to Edmonton. He purposes waiting upon the government with reference to some immigration matters.

The immigration department of the Canadian Northern is just being organized, and that company will enter energetically into the business of importing settlers next spring.

It is chiefly with a view to gaining a promise from the government of Alberta that all within the power of this province will be done to facilitate the finding of work for the immigrants upon their arrival here. Mr. Howell has been at Victoria, B.C., and claims to have been given the assurance of the British Columbia government that everything possible will be done to assist the immigrants there.

Among other things the company is arranging for a large staff of immigration agents in Great Britain. Several are now on their way to the old country, while others will leave within a short time.

This winter they will carry on an active campaign across the Atlantic, and will organize several parties to come to Canada in the spring. In this manner the experiment of bringing parties into the country in the early part of the spring will be tried.

TO VISIT IRELAND

King George Will Probably Pay a Visit to the Emerald Isle

London.—To get into closer touch with the people of Ireland and to show them that they are as near his heart as the people of England and Scotland, King George is said to be considering spending some time every year in Ireland's capital. I am informed on excellent authority, that the King has been discussing with his political advisers, the members of the Liberals and Mr. Balfour as leader of the opposition of the advisability of abolishing the Irish viceroyalty. If the plan meets with th ir approval King Geo ge is willing to give up the time his father spent at Biarrits and cruising in the Mediterranean to put in a residence of three or four weeks during the early spring in the Castle of Dublin. Should it not prove feasible to carry out this plan next spring King George will at least pay a lengthy visit to Ireland some time before his coronation.

BRITISH EDITOR IS FINED

Evening News Editor Mulcted for Publishing Article Calculated to Prejudice Crippen's Case

London.—In the high court of justice the editor of the Evening News was fined £200 for contempt of court in having published a story of the conference between Richard Muir, prosecuting counsel in the Crippen case, and the quarter-master of the steamer Montrose. According to the newspaper's story the ship's officer had revealed the plan by which he and Crippen had arranged to bring about the latter's escape from the vessel while he was being pursued by British authorities. The court held that the publication of the story was calculated to prejudice the case of Crippen when the latter should be brought to trial for the murder of his wife.

Condensed News Items

Over fifteen thousand acres of wheat land in Alberta was recently sold for about $200,000.

The sale of the Cardiff coal property at Edmonton, Alta., has been completed at a price of $300,000.

Two consignments of furs were recently shipped from Edmonton, Alta., to London, Eng. The total value of the furs is $150,000.

It is expected that the Canadian Fisheries and Cold Storage Company, capitalized at $1,000,000, will operate in Prince Rupert, B.C.

It is reported that the Grand Trunk Pacific has taken over that portion of the National Transcontinental between Winnipeg and Superior Junction.

The new three-span steel bridge now being built across the Frazer river, at Cisco, B.C., for the Canadian Pacific Railway, will be ready for traffic in about a week.

Mr. L. R. Voligny, government engineer, reports that all preliminary surveys on the Saskatchewan river between Edmonton and Winnipeg will be completed this fall.

Big Game Plentiful

Fort William.—Trainmen running between Fort William and Winnipeg state that never before in their experience on the road have big game been as plentiful as this fall. C. Fregeau, veteran Canadian Pacific engineer, and his fireman, counted five moose near the track between Sheba and English, about sixty miles. Two moose have been killed by locomotives west of here during the past ten days.

Objects to Sunday Pleasure

London. — Rev. Douglas Ellison, writing to the council of archbishops re the Western Canada fund, says: "We are face to face in the new towns with the potent force of materialism and the gross forms of vice are rampant. Sunday under American influence, is largely a day of pleasure."

Church and State

Lisbon.—The separation of the church and state was announced in a decree issued by the provisional government recently. Another decree declared for the freedom of the press.

BLAME C. N. R. FOR FIRE

Men Who Have Investigated the Blaze at Rainy River Make Report

Minneapolis, Minn.—The Canadian Northern railway is held responsible for the fire which destroyed Beaudette, in the report made to General C. C. Andrews, forestry commissioner, by George Chapin, St. Paul, and Frank Cartis, of Roosevelt, who have been investigating the origin.

The report says there is sufficient evidence to show that the fire was set by the railroad on the Canadian side during the latter part of July. The fire worked south to the north branch of the Beaudette river and north to Rainy River, covering about eight square miles. It burned up to the west side of Beaudette and lay smouldering until October 7 when it was fanned by a terrific wind and led to the disaster. About the same time the fire was seen on the right-of-way just east of Winter Road river. This fire worked east three miles and about two miles back on each side of the track, where it connected with the fire which was started on the Beaudette side of the river.

Eight prosecutions against the Canadian Northern railway for allowing combustible material on the right-of-way are now pending in the district court of Beltrami county. The railroad is fighting the constitutionality of the law. If the state wins in these cases the forestry department plans to bring action against the Canadian Northern for sixteen other fires alleged to have been set since July. The loss from the recent fires is estimated at about five million dollars by agents of the forestry commission.

PULPWOOD SUPPLY DISCUSSED

Report Made to Washington that Quebec's Prohibition of Exports Will Not be Effective for Years

Washington—The action of the government of the province of Quebec prohibiting exportation of pulpwood cut on its crown lands, taken up from and after May 1, 1910, and on settlers' lands taken up from and after Sept. 1, 1910, will not have the effect of reducing the quantity of pulpwood for export for years to come and perhaps never, according to Consul Gebhard Willrich, of Quebec, who has made a report on the subject to his government.

Consul Willrich reached this conclusion after a careful study of the pulpwood situation in Quebec. The conclusion, he says, would not be justified if settlers lands located Sept. 1, 1910, could have been made subject to the restriction, but that cannot be done for legal and other reasons. To deprive such settlers of their lands, he says, is not practicable nor even contemplated.

TO REPRESENT CANADA

Twenty Liberals and Twelve Conservatives to Represent Canadian Parliament

Ottawa.—The Evening Journal says it is understood that it is the intention of the government to follow the example of the Australian government and provide officially for representation of the parliamentary opposition at the coronation of King George.

The question will come up soon after the opening of parliament next month. It is probable, therefore, that the Dominion of Canada will be represented at the coronation by twenty Liberal members of parliament, twelve Conservatives, the chief justice of the supreme court, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, and the premiers of the various provinces.

HOSMER LIFE SAVING STATION

Apparatus for British Columbia Mines Will Be Placed in Various Shafts

Victoria, B. C.—At Hosmer there has just been established the first life-saving station for mines in the province. The work has been done under the direct supervision of R. F. Tolmie, deputy minister of mines, and F. H. Shepherd, chief mine inspector of the province. The Draeger oxygen apparatus is the chief part of the system. This is used in the resuscitation of those who are temporarily overcome by damp after an explosion.

Other stations will be established at Nanaimo and Middlesboro in a short time.

PROFITABLE SERVICE

Service From Manchester to Canada Has Proved to be Very Satisfactory

Montreal.—So satisfactory has been the regular weekly service of the freight steamers from Manchester to Quebec and Montreal during the seasons of navigation in 1909 and 1910 that the Manchester liners, limited, have decided on a weekly service to Canada all the year round.

The information was conveyed recently in a special cable from The Star's resident correspondent in London and was confirmed locally by Mr. R. J. Binning, manager for Furness, Withy and company, the Canadian agents of the Manchester liners.

Colonial Credit Has Never Failed

Birmingham, Eng.—In the course of an address here recently, the Right Hon. Alfred Lyttleton, formerly secretary of state for the colonies, discussed the financial condition of the dominions beyond the seas, and said he understood that none of these had ever defaulted to the extent of even a sixpence in connection with their public debts.

Homesteads in Big Demand

Ottawa.—The total number of homestead entries in western Canada for the first eight months of the fiscal year was 36,916, an increase of 12,520 over the corresponding period last year. Saskatchewan leads with 27,692, Alberta was second with 12,413, Manitoba third with 2,042, and British Columbia fourth with 169.

Crippen Has Made Appeal

London.—Dr. Crippen has decided to appeal. On that account the execution date many not be on Nov. 15.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON VI.—FOURTH QUARTER, FOR NOV. 6, 1910.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xxvi, 17-30. Memory Verses, 26-28 — Golden Text, Luke xxii, 19—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This lesson, entitled "The Last Supper," is recorded by Mark and Luke as well as by Matthew, and there is a long portion recorded by John only (chapters xiii to xvii, inclusive). It is easy to read it. How often we have done so, but who can understand it? Only by the Spirit can we in any measure grasp a little of its significance. May each one of us have a special anointing to read, to write, to meditate, to teach, and may the Spirit have full control of us, that Jesus Christ may be glorified. Luke says that He sent Peter and John, saying, "Go and prepare us the Passover, that we may eat." Then they asked Him, "Where wilt thou that we prepare?" To which He replied that they were to follow a man whom they would meet, in the city bearing a pitcher of water, and by him they would find the furnished upper room. They found as He had said and made ready the Passover. With the "Where wilt thou?" of this lesson I have in mind the "What wilt thou?" of Acts ix, 6, with Prov. iii, 5, 6, and its "Trust—lean not—acknowledge—He shall direct." We cannot learn the way of peace and His guidance in all things until we have learned that we of ourselves know nothing and can do nothing. Then see what simple, ordinary things He uses—a man, a pitcher of water and, away back in the story, a shepherd's rod, a dream many a time, a barley cake, the dew, a vine, a fig tree, a gourd, a worm, a hen and chickens, sparrows, everything? If there seems to be delay in guidance He is saying, "My time is not yet," but in due time He will say, "My time is at hand."

When evening came He sat down with the twelve and spake of His great desire for this time, but that He would never again eat the Passover with them nor drink of the fruit of the vine till the kingdom of God should come (Luke xxii, 15-18), thus pointing to a future fulfillment of the Passover, when the deliverance of Israel from all nations would so far exceed the deliverance from Egypt that the deliverance under Moses would not seem worth mentioning in comparison (Jer. xxiii, 7, 8). Then followed, still between verses 20 and 21 of our lesson, the washing of their feet, with its great lesson of humility. Those who think that He taught only literal foot washing should consider His words to Peter, "If I wash thee not thou hast no part with me" (John xiii,). He washed the feet of Judas as well as of the others, yet Judas had no part with Him, and He said concerning him "It had been good for that man if he had not been born" (verse 24). If the wicked are to be annihilated, as some teach, [illegible] force in this saying of Jesus [illegible]ne during the feast Jesus ind[illegible]es as His betrayer by dipping [illegible] and handing it to him. Satan ha[illegible] then entered into Judas, Jesus said to him, "That thou doest do quickly," and he went out immediately, and it was night (John xiii, 26-30). It has been night with him ever since, and there is no morning for him (Isa. viii, 20, R. V.).

The Passover being ended and Judas having gone out to do his devilish work, our Lord took bread, blessed, brake and gave to the disciples and said, "Take, eat; this is My body." Then He took the cup and gave thanks and gave it to them, saying, "Drink ye all of it, for this is My blood of the New Testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins." Then He added a word about not drinking it henceforth till the kingdom comes (verses 26-29). Paul in his statement of this says that Jesus added both in reference to the bread and the wine, "This do in remembrance of Me," and he added, "For as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup ye do show the Lord's death till he come" (1 Cor. xi, 23-26). Those who teach that He gave them His actual body and blood to eat and drink should explain how this could be while He sat there among them. Rather let us accept His own explanation in John vi, 47, 54, that eating His flesh and drinking His blood is just believing in Him, for everlasting life is the result in each case, and there are not two ways of obtaining this life. What we eat we receive into us and assimilate it, and it becomes part of our body. As we eat His words, which are spirit and life, we eat Himself, and He dwells in us (John vi, 63; Jer. xv, 16).

We cannot begin to consider in so brief a lesson all the words and events of that evening, but between verses 29 and 30 of our lesson we must think of the whole of John xiv and with verse 31 of that chapter compare verse 30 of our lesson, remembering that John xiv is preceded by Peter's assurance of readiness to die with Jesus. How little we know ourselves! How well He knows us! And yet with all our vain boasting hear His "Let not your heart be troubled," as if He said: "You will find out what, I know already, but do not think of yourself or be discouraged."

After verse 30 of our lesson we must think of the whole of John xv, xvi and xvii. Then in verse 31 hear His quotation from Zech. xiii, 7, and let the sword of that verse point you back to the sword of Gen. iii, 24, which must find a sacrifice, the antitype of Abel's lamb, if man would approach God.

To Have British Empire Trade Mark

It Was Dizzy Spells Gave the Warning

Fainting Also Alarmed Her — Now Strength and Energy are Restored by DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Pain is often a blessing in disguise. For when you suffer you get in earnest about a cure.

Many who are in a really serious condition from nervous exhaustion do not realize they are in danger because they have no pain.

They are weak and easily fatigued, their digestive system lacks the necessary vigor to digest food, appetite is poor and interest in life seems to wane. Some even have dizzy spells and fainting spells, as had the writer of this letter, before realizing the danger they are in.

To such heart failure or some form of paralysis is liable to come at any moment.

Why not take definite action today so that restoration may begin at once. You can get Dr. Chase's Nerve Food at almost any store where medicine is sold, and can be sure that every dose brings you so much nearer to health and vigor.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I was in a terrible condition, dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. I could not so much as sweep the floor without fainting. My nervous system was all run down.

"Doctors failed to help me so I turned to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I soon felt that it was a God-send to me because I could feel that it was restoring my system. I can now wash and do the housework without difficulty and give all credit for the cure to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

The genuine Dr. Chase's Nerve Food bears portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., the famous Receipt Book author, 50 cts. a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

GOLD MINES OF IRELAND.

County Wicklow Had a Rush in 1796 But Government Took It.

Ireland is certainly not the "poor distressful country" some people would like one to believe. The fact that it possesses gold mines (although they are not worked to-day) is proof to the contrary. The mines are situated in Wicklow. According to tradition, the Wicklow gold mines were first discovered by a poor schoolmaster. One day, while fishing in one of the streams which descend from the Croghan Mountains, he picked up a piece of shining metal. Ascertaining that it was gold, he gradually enriched himself by searching the various streams in the neighborhood and disposing of what he found to a Dublin goldsmith. He kept the secret to himself for twenty years, but having married, he told his wife, and she, believing that he was mad, told her relatives, who soon made it public O'Keefe has founded an amusing farce upon the incident.

When the story of the gold mine became public, about the close of 1795, the usual "rush" occurred. Thousands of every age and sex hurried to the spot. From the laborer who could wield a spade to the child who scraped the surface of the rock with a rusty nail, all eagerly searched for gold. The rich and fanciful imagination of the Irish conjured up visions of inexhaustible wealth. On the north side of Wicklow County sparkled the Valley of Diamonds, and on the south the lofty Croghan was to them as the Golden Mountain.

De Latocnaye, a French emigrant, who published an account of his travels in Ireland, visited the Wicklow gold mines shortly after the Government had placed a guard upon the ground. He writes: "I was often obliged to ask the way, and my demands excited the curiosity of the peasants; they quitted their work before they answered me, asked me some question in their turn, wanted to know if the mine would be soon worked, if the Government had sent me there, and a thousand things of the same nature. They soon began to tell me of a person who sent his children there on a Sunday morning, after it had rained, and that they brought back gold to the value of twenty guineas."

During the interval between the publication of the circumstance and the Government taking possession of the mine—a period of two months—upwards of 2,500 ounces of gold was collected by the peasantry, chiefly from the mud and sand of Ballinvalley stream, and disposed of for almost $50,000. This sum greatly exceeded the produce of the mine under Government operations, which only amounted to little more than $17,500 The gold was found in pieces of all sizes, from the smallest particle to a mass of twenty-two ounces, which sold for about eighty guineas. A cast of it, gilt, was deposited in the museum of Trinity College, Dublin. So pure was the gold generally found that it was the custom of the Dublin goldsmiths to put gold coin into the opposite scale to it, and to give weight for weight.

Sports In England.

A diversion little followed in America now, but which still holds its own in England, is the walking or bicycling tour. England is not a country given to sudden crazes in the matter of sports. There are reasons, of course, in which some game like ping-pong or diabolo carries everything before it for the moment and is then as suddenly dropped. But, on the whole, a sport that has once become popular in England remains so. Bicycling is a case in point.

More cycles are being sold in England than ever They are not perhaps as fashionable as they once were, and the days when cycling in Battersea Park competed with riding in Rotten Row have long gone by. But as the vehicle of the masses the cycle still predominates, and the whole country is a network of cycling clubs whose members organize successive tours of a fortnight or three weeks throughout the summer months.

The English again have always been great pedestrians, and many thousands of them devote their vacation to tramping the Welsh hills or the lake district or Devonshire or some other of the almost countless regions that in England offer one a combination of faultless roads, beautiful scenery, and historic associations. Touring by caravan is not so popular a pastime, but is still not uncommon, and those who once take to it declare that it knocks all other forms of holiday making on the head. And besides all this there are the joys of motoring for those who can afford them, while even a tenth-rate resort boasts of its golf links, its tennis courts, and its cricket club.

A Great Player.

Sir Walter Parratt had an extraordinary memory. Some eight or ten men were assembled one evening in one of the lodges attached to St. Michael's College, Tenbury. Sir Walter Parratt and Herr von Holst played in turn upon the piano such music as was asked for. This went on for some time until at last the chessboard was brought out. Sir Walter then proposed to play two men at chess in consultation, still remaining at the piano and playing from memory what was demanded either from Bach, Beethoven, Mozart, Chopin or Mendelssohn. Without even a glance at the chessboard he won the game in an hour.—London Globe.

Royal Diana's Book of Adventure.

The Queen of Portugal's sister, the lovely and adventurous Duchess d'Aosta, has in the press an English volume describing her recent big game hunting expedition in the Congo regions.

The duchess spent nearly a year in the wilds, accompanied only by a maid and a nigger servant. She returned to Italy a few weeks ago with twenty big cases of trophies of the chase and many cinematograph pictures of wild beasts in their native haunts. Her book will be a revelation of woman intrepidity, and will certainly create an enormous amount of interest in royal circles.

Scratched Until I Tore The Flesh

"It was in the latter end of the year 1903 that a nasty itch came through my skin, and I scratched it until I tore the flesh. I tried several ointments to no effect. I went to a skin hospital. They advised me to go to the ——— Hospital, but I refused. I could not sleep with the constant itch. I was that way until on or about the month of January. One day I chanced to see in the papers a case like mine, but I gave it no credence. At last I said, 'I will try the Cuticura Remedies.' With the first wash and Cuticura Ointment I used, I found their effects. I got one box of the Ointment more, and in less than one week the skin was all right, and left no traces after it. I have not had a return of the same since, and I shall always praise the Cuticura Remedies as being the means of my cure."

(Signed) JOHN TYRRELL,
94, Scotland Road, Liverpool.

In a further letter Mr. Tyrrell adds: "The first appearance of my skin eczema was a burning itch which I tore and left my body, legs and arms one mass of sores. It caused sleepless nights, but now I can sleep as well as ever."

Anniversary of Birth of Dr. Johnson

The two hundred and first anniversary of the birth of Dr. Samuel Johnson has just been celebrated in his native city of Litchfield. Among the state proceedings the principal feature was the inauguration of a Johnson society, which aims at aggravating the interest in the doctor's life and works.

At a supper of Johnsonian fare, Oscar Browning expressed a hope that it would be found possible to secure the house in Gough Square, where Johnson lived, as a national memorial. There are two facts, however, that prove the absurdity of the suggestion. Firstly, London is, to use Londonese, "fed up" with Johnsonian memorials; the neighborhood of Fleet street fairly shrieks of Johnson. There is the statue of Johnson, the Johnson's pew in St. Clement Danes, Johnson's court, Johnson's walk, besides the inscriptions on the many houses where he lived. Secondly, the house in Gough square is a mere shell, with no interior features of interest, excepte the memory that the famous dictionary was compiled in the garret. It would take a small fortune to make the house visitable, a fortune that any unprejudiced literary body could expend in a hundred better ways.

A student in a medical college, while learning the use of the ophthalmoscope, was told to examine a man's eye and report upon the condition of it. The doctor-to-be adjusted the instrument and looked long and searchingly into the subject's left optic.

"Most remarkable," he ejaculated, with a surprised look. Readjusting the ophthalmoscope, he again carefully scrutinized the eye. This must be some new disease. Have you ever had an expert's opinion on it?"

"Once," was the laconic reply. "The man who put it in said it was a fine bit of glass."

CAUSE AND CURE OF RHEUMATISM

Due to Impurities in the Blood —Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The most noticeable and immediate result of rheumatism is a marked thinning of the blood, and in no disease does it develop more rapidly. Not only does the blood become weak but it is soon filled with impurities, which the different organs of the body have been unable to throw off. One of the most harmful of these impurities is uric acid, which is formed from the waste products of the body. In health it is readily passed off by the kidneys with the help of oxygen from the red corpuscles of the blood. Without oxygen the kidneys are unable to rid the system of this acid and it is retained in the blood and distributed to all parts of the body. The weak back, pains across the kidneys and thin scanty, highly colored secretions, which follow, show that the acid is already in the blood and often leads the sufferer to think he has kidney trouble. If the disease is not driven out of the blood, rheumatism can never be cured, and the sufferer will always be subject to attacks, whenever exposed to damp or cold. With each returning attack the pain becomes more severe and complications often arise making necessary the use of habit forming drugs to relieve pain.

It is readily seen that the only way to cure rheumatism is through the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills afford such a treatment as they contain all the elements necessary to build up and purify the blood. They increase its oxygen carrying capacity enabling the kidneys to pass the uric acid from the body and the other organs to do their work. Thus rheumatism is reached at its root and permanently cured. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are absolutely free from all habit-forming drugs, and are not an experiment as the following case will show:—Mr. W. Studley Lewis, Pilot Mound, Man., says:—"I am a firm believer in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and always keep some by me in case of need. A few years ago while teaching school I suffered so much with rheumatism in my arms and shoulders that I had the greatest difficulty in writing on the blackboard, and after trying a number of remedies without benefit, I was almost in despair, and felt inclined to abandon teaching. But one day I happened to pick up one of Dr. Williams' almanacs, and read of the cure of a number of severe cases of rheumatism through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This decided me to give the Pills a trial, and I had only taken them a few weeks when I felt much better. In the course of a few weeks more the pains and stiffness had all left me, and I had no more difficulty in doing my work. I cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for they and they alone cured me of my rheumatism."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

KIPLING AS A SCHOOLBOY.

Interesting Recollections of a "Queer Little Undersized Lad."

Schoolboy memories of a queer little lad who afterwards was Rudyard Kipling were told in Chicago the other day by Capt. Arthur St. John, retired officer of the English army, world traveler, and leader in the movement to reform English prisons. Capt. St. John is in the United States as a delegate from England to the International Prison Congress in Washington.

"It was in 1878 or 1879 that I first remember Kipling," said St. John. "I was then in the upper forms of the United Service school, Westward Ho which is on the north Devon coast. A queer little under-sized lad he was then, perhaps 13 years old. I remember him distinctly and knew him as well as an older boy in a large school usually knows his juniors. Kipling's fondness for long words made him noticeable. The older boys knew him as the 'little fellow who knew the meaning of long words.' He would give little information if you asked him what the words meant; he was afraid of being jollied. For all that, he was not a chap who could care for his own rights very well.

"I remember particularly that the older boys would order the lad to eat worms or dirt or something as delicate. He would pretend to obey and would go through the form of eating the worms assigned to him. I don't know whether he did it or not. We older boys know him also as 'the little fellow who would eat worms.' For all his apparent yielding I never felt that the subserviency went very deep. He would apparently yield because he was unable to do otherwise. We felt, however, that below the surface his spirit was his own.

"Of course, he was never good at any form of athletics. Although Westward Ho is situated on the ocean, I do not remember that Kipling was ever a good swimmer. He was undersized and too near-sighted for the sports. His story 'Stalky and Co.' was written about Westward Ho. Of course the story is not a correct portrayal of the school life. There used to be a story that Kipling dared not meet his schoolmates after writing the story.

"The same things are said of his Anglo-Indian stories. I was born in Jolander in the Punjab region, and later served with my regiment in India, among other places. The officers attached to the Indian service resented the life which Indian officers lead in the stories. The whisky and women features I refer to. Still, all who know Indian life know that he interpreted the Indian character, well, and most English officers are fond of the straight Indian stories.

ROYAL PALACE FOR IRELAND.

King George Said to Be Contemplating Such a Move.

Since the coming of King George to the throne the rumors about the establishment of a royal residence in Ireland have been revived and this time I am informed it is more than likely that they will be verified, says a London correspondent.

It is known that when he was Prince of Wales the present King was greatly taken with an estate in the north that was coming into the market, and instructed an agent to acquire it for him. The matter came to the ears of the then lord lieutenant, who immediately protested to King Edward that his position, never a pleasant one, would become absolutely untenable if the prince established a residence in Ireland. The King saw the justice of the complaint and ordered his son to drop the negotiations.

Now that George is king he is free to follow his own inclinations in the matter and of course there could be no trouble of the sort feared before. As king he could spend little time in Ireland and when he was there of course the viceroy would have to take a back seat if he did not efface himself altogether. When the real king was in Ireland there would be no use for a vice-king.

I am told that he is now after a fine estate in the south which abounds in game and that the owners are more than willing to sell.

The politicians see in this rumor confirmation of the report that the offer to Ireland of self-government in some form will be the outcome of the conference on the powers of the House of Lords which is still going on. The King is known to favor this course strongly and to be desirous that his reign should be thus signalized. I am told that not very long ago, when he was discussing the fact that he would be unable to carry out the engagement he made as Prince of Wales to open the first Parliament of United South Africa, he declared that he would have no regrets on this score if he were enabled to open the first Irish Parliament in College Green in person.

Football.

The King has evidently taken a fancy to the Association game, which he had not seen prior to his visit to the England v. Scotland International at the Crystal Palace, and there is just a possibility that he may attend the Cup Final this season. His visit to the "Soccer" International was made in response to the representations of an ordinary correspondent, who pointed out that "Soccer" followers would be delighted if he were to honor a representative match with his presence.

In his younger days, the King played football a good deal, and he has gone out of his way to encourage his sons' interest in the game. Still, he is fonder, perhaps, of cricket, to which he was very devoted at school and college.

Why Bixby Doesn't Go.

"Bixby sent the minister ten reasons for not going to church, but he left out the main one."

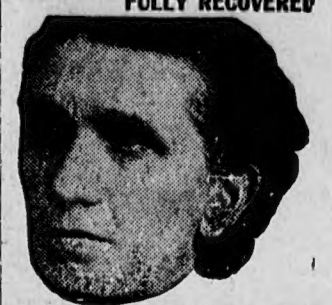

"What is that?"

"He stays away because his wife doesn't make him go."

Shoes that Combine
Both Style and Fit

Few men wear clumsy, badly made, ugly shoes from choice.

They may say that they prefer them to shoes that are handsome and stylish,—but do they?

Most men wear ugly shoes simply because they have an idea that they're the only comfortable shoes made,—

And also because they have never worn INVICTUS Shoes.

We have INVICTUS Shoes in the newest 1910 styles which will fit every line of your foot easily, comfortably and snugly.

Remember the soles of all INVICTUS Shoes are made of genuine oak tanned sole leather—the most durable sole leather there is.

A Harvest Song

After the plowing and sowing
After the burdens and heat,
After the seasons of striving
Cometh reward that is sweet;
Cometh the rest-time we merit,
When labor is not in vain,
A time to laugh and be merry,
Singing the harvest refrain.

After the battle of effort,
After the sigh and the tear,
After the watching and waiting
The time of reaping is near;
When the deeds and seeds bear fruitage
Cometh a time to be glad;
After the trouble is over
Time to forget we were sad.

After the planting and tending—
Long after the fruits mature,
Cometh sweet rest for the weary
And peace for those who endure;
A time for rejoicing cometh.
Then laugh and thy mirth prolong—
Toil's recompense is in reaping
When cometh sweet rest and song.

—Margaret Scott Hall, in Family Herald.

Those who have been stating and intimating that there is a desire to treat the Indians as babies, on the part of the officials are badly in error. The desire is to make men of the Indians and in order to do this a strong objection is raised to supplying them with money, or food, or "firewater" to coax them to hang around exhibitions and parade themselves more than half naked. The officials want to raise the Indian above such small childish things.

It may be of interest to state that during the past summer only one typhoid fever case developed in Gleichen. This is especially pleasing when it is known that this fever was quite prevalent in many places And is the more satisfactory when it is said many cases were brought here for treatment from the camps and other outside points, there being as many as fifteen cases in the hospital and private houses at one time. This speaks well for Gleichen, and goes to show that this town is a singularly healthy one. The one case that developed here was that of a small boy who had a very slight attack of the fever. This statement is given on the authority of our doctors.

Throughout the entire Bow Valley the people have many things to be thankful for this season. Wonderful progress has been made, and while our crops cannot be said to be equal to those of last year, yet there is no one in want and every farmer speaks most optimistically of the coming year, and state that the recent rains have supplied ample moisture to insure good crops next season. However, we have some excellent crops and the lessons learned this year will prove of the greatest value. Wondrous preparations have been made this season for greater agricultural development throughout the country, and at this Thanksgiving time we may all join in expressing devout thanks for the prosperity we have been favored with both in town and country.

A Big Shipment of Poultry

There was shipped from the Ontario Agricultural College, at Guelph, Ont., and from the Macdonald Institute at Ste. Annes, Que., one day last week, one thousand pure bred fowl to the Department of Agriculture in Alberta. This is perhaps one of the most unique shipments handled by a Canadian railway, and the conditions necessiating the shipment are in a like manner decidedly unique.

There were 200 cars of poultry shipped into Alberta last year. This is due to the fact that the demand for eggs and poultry far exceeds the supply. The raising of poultry on the farms in Alberta is in the nature of what the minister of agriculture, Hon. Duncan Marshall, terms a by-product. "I don't know that I would advise any farmer in Alberta to go into the raising of poultry exclusively," he said, "but at the same time there is a considerable amount of money to be made out of this by product. It is a striking evidence of the development of mixed farming in the province that the poultry branch of the department requires to import a thousand chickens from the east this year to fill the orders which have been received at the poultry station for birds. There are now on order at the poultry station requests for 1,500 birds from the farmers of the province These orders have come absolutely unsolicited. This year the poultry station raised 500 young birds, which is only a third of the number required by the farmers. To fill these orders the department decided to go east. I was successful in making an excellent price arrangement for the fowl in Ontario and Quebec, and I secured the assistance of the Dominion department of agriculture in the shipping of the birds west. In keeping with the policy of aiding shipments of live stock from the east to the west, the department consented to pay the freight on these thousand birds from their point of shipment to Edmonton."

A Good Position

Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railway telegraphy. Since the eight-hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of R. R. and Wireless Officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Davenport, Ia., Cincinnati, O., Portland, Ore., or Memphis, Tenn.

DANGERS OF RUNNERS.

Walter Knox of Orillia Has Faced a Revolver Barrel Before Now.

Stories of professional foot runners being shot at for winning and shot at for losing races are usually reminiscent of the good old days of twenty years ago, when the country was flooded with crooked sprinters and half-milers. The other day Walter R. Knox, the famous Orillia athlete, dropped into town, and the conversation rounded to gun-play over foot races. Now, Knox is a silent fellow. He has by hard experience learned the wisdom of keeping his mouth shut and his ears open. Therefore when he rounded to and commenced to talk about his adventures in that line, I was more than surprised that he should loosen up. However, it is a cinch he never considered for a second that his tales of tight quarters would ever reach the calcium of public print. Even at that the stories were only revealed after much adroit questioning or politic silence at the proper time.

"Down in Mexico I fucked up against a tough proposition," remarked Walter. "I had to give a runner down there a three-yard start for a big bet. The night before an ugly-looking greaser came to my room and said: 'I know you won't win this race to-morrow.'

"'Why won't I?' I asked.

"'I know you won't,' he said, producing a 'Gat,' with a bore as big as a military rifle. 'I'll be 75 yards down the course, and if you're ahead there I'll bore you, and if you win half a dozen Mexicans will be at the tape to carve you up. The chief of police was a friend of mine, so I told him. He said: 'You run and win and I'll look after you.'

"When the gun cracked for the race I drew level with my man early, and then dropped back and watched for the greaser at the 75-yard mark. He was there. When I got by I shot to the front and won. The greaser came back by the greaser, and when he made for me the chief made for him, and there was no trouble.

"Up in British Columbia the night before a race I received a message to meet a certain man. I told my backers and they told me to meet him and see what was afoot.

"Before I went I threw on my rain coat, and, putting an automatic pistol in the side pocket, I met the man. He took me a quarter of a mile out of town, where two other chaps met us. Then he said: 'You — — if you win that race to-morrow I'll kill you!' and he poked the gun into my ribs hard enough to hurt. I had my hand in my pocket with the gun trained on his heart. I knew if he pulled the trigger the clutch of my fingers would give him his receipt.

"'Did you win?'

"'Yes, I did.'

"'What happened?'

"'Well, this chap's friends were at the tape when I broke it, but they made their sneak. When I left the crowd to get my clothes the chap who pulled me with the 'Gat' ordered me for me. He was a bad one, too, but my backer, a stripped lightweight, watched for him and when he poke'd his head through the crowd he knocked him senseless with his cane crutch. He went down like a pole-axed steer, I thought he was killed.

"They've had the gun on me more than once, but they have established so often about getting me that I am more afraid of some disappointed sport potting me without saying a word than I am about these chaps who wear guns and knives, and tell you what they are going to do.

"They got me once in Seattle, but they drugged me. The gave me colorine before the race. I was out for my all day in spells. When that razzle came I never started away so fast in all my life. I went like a bullet, and was in deadly terror lest one of those staggering drug spells would hit me and I would lose."

Knox has a couple of bullet scars, but he did not receive them over foot races. Those who know Knox will say he is the gamest, coolest athlete who ever stood in spikes, and claim that he could if he cared be the all-around champion to-day.

He has been clocked a hundred in 9 3-5 seconds by good men, and can always beat 10 1-5 if he has to, is a fair 220 man, jumps 23 feet and over all the time, pole vaults well enough to beat Eddie Archibald; puts the shot 44 feet, the discus 124, and can high jump 5 feet 10 inches. Knox is only a 160 pound man, at that, but he is a good caretaker. He will likely go to England next summer, and if he does he'll beat Postle, Eastman, and that crowd.—Toronto Star.

Toronto Still Holds Record.

The Galt L. C. brought in its excursion here yesterday the toughest and noisiest lot of young blackguards that have invaded the streets of Brampton since the Toronto Irishmen were here. This gang of toughs brought its booze, hard stuff, in suit cases and they were half full when they stepped off the train. At the lacrosse grounds they drank and caroused during the entire game. After the game they took possession of the main street from corner north. They scrapped, yelled, cursed and did as they pleased. It was a good opportunity for Councillor Williams "law and order committee" to show how and order it was good for. Chief Harvey arrested one man at the train and afterwards for some unknown reason let him go again—Brampton Banner and Times.

Profanity by Proxy.

A good solid type of Western Ontario gentleman not long ago told of an early time when he had been guilty of profanity. He and a friend had gone fishing, and for some time they heard no dead against them. At last, however, they seemed to be about to get at the one time the reward for their patience. Both corks were bobbing beautifully, and it was in the excitement of the moment that the man who was very careful of his language was trapped into a lapse.

"I've got a — good bite," said the friend eagerly, and with fully as much eagerness the man who never had indulged in unprintable talk whispered, "So have I."

INTESTINAL PARALYSIS

SURGEON ON HANDICRAFTS.

Sir Frederick Treves Says Skill Is Passing Away.

Perhaps some persons would be embarrassed for a moment if they were asked to describe the ideals which led to the creation of a Philharmonic Society, or at least until they had had time to reflect that the word "amateur" signified to the Greek in the first instance the whole field of learning, says The Lancet. It is then only fitting that a society banded together by its common love of learning should now and then bid as the chief guest of its yearly banquet a distinguished exponent of medical knowledge.

When the Liverpool Philharmonic Society invited Sir Frederick Treves recently to the chair of honor it paid its homage to art no less than to science, and their guest, whose art has been shown with pen as well as scalpel, devoted his address to the praise of handicraft and in some measure to a lament for its decline among men. He reminded his audience that the surgeon is loved of all the arts for what his hands, and after asking whether mankind is, as a whole, losing that wonderful function, he felt constrained to answer yea. In spinning, weaving, sewing, carving, writing, countless human hands have been for ages employed, but now the machine by dint of surpassing excellence and variety have been produced.

None will deny that the advance of handicraft since the days when man was confined to the shaping of flints and the preparation of hides for garments has been an amazing one almost to stagger contemplation. But, says Sir Frederick Treves, with the perfection of mechanical skill the zenith of human handicraft has been passed. Machinery has already killed the necessity for the finer movements of the fingers now that the loom, the sewing machine and the typewriter have reduced the output of a million hands to that of a soulless level of uniformity. Many Lancashire present themselves to support the theory that machinery is doing wrought is cast in moulds; furniture is decorated by stamping machines; the eamens and the electric bath are wrought; skilled craftsmanship in art; and if there still be such craftsmen among us were at once the pride and the glory of the Middle Ages, their hands find no similar expression for their capacities, for there is only here and there a purchaser for work wrought, and therefore costly. wares.

Sir Frederick Treves sighed for the day of hand-made lace and hand-made boots, and every book lover will join with him in his protest against the end of paper-making and bookbinding when carried on by hand. Again his own profession he drew a striking instance of how the progress of invention may tend to the decay of manual handicraft. He could imagine few phases of anything more difficult or more subtle than that displayed by the facile operations of the accomplished tie days. Now there is no call to be brilliant, for the surgeon can proceed with easy deliberation, while the use of the flashing of a blade is an action as studied as the movements of a man on board." He acknowledged that surgery had been gained more than it had but thought that nevertheless it no longer attains to its former perfection as a handicraft.

We cannot wholly indorse Sir Frederick Treves' view here. The modern surgeon is called upon to perform manipulations in the thorax and in the abdomen, the pelvis and even in the brain itself that never tried the hand of the old time surgeon, and the rapid exploits of amputation or lithotomy were timed by the second eye of the watch. And in any general indictment of machinery it must be remembered that the machine may be regarded as the extension of the human hand called into existence by exercise of the highest faculties of the brain. But we agree with much of Sir Frederick Treves's lament. The hand-made thing is always a sign that the individuality of it professes to be, and often possesses a character and beauty that no machine can imitate because it depends upon a human individuality

London's "Lady Servants" Club.

A club for "lady servants" is soon to be opened in London. The chief object of the club, according to the secretary, is to give domestics an opportunity of enjoying the social life of which their position often deprives them. People would be surprised, she says, if they knew how many ladies have gone into domestic service in the last few years. Many of them belong to dissolved old families, and others are daughters of doctors, clergymen, and lawyers.

The club building in the career of a lady who becomes a servant, it is pointed out, is the lack of contact with society, but she will be lonely no longer, in future she will spend her evenings out at the club.

The club rules permit members to invite male friends to dine at the club and enjoy a quiet rubber of bridge. Members will not be encouraged to talk shop. Bridge, for small stakes, may be indulged in, and country members on a visit to town will find in the club all the luxuries of a London hotel.

Starving Soldiers.

With a view to finding an answer to the question, "How little food can a soldier exist upon while maintaining his efficiency and marching fifteen miles a day," the War Office has just been experimenting upon a company of Somerset Light Infantry at Dartmoor. The daily ration was two biscuits and a half-pound of "bully beef" a man. Active service conditions were rigidly enforced. No luxuries of any kind were allowed—not even tents, so no changes of clothing beyond what the men carried, no tobacco, no beer, no mineral waters and no communications with the outside world. The men marched fifteen miles a day in full marching order, with the addition of a blanket to be used as the sole covering at night.

Modern Miracle.

"Do you believe in miracles?"

"Yes. I left my umbrella in a car the other morning and got it when I inquired at the place where articles that are found in the cars are supposed to be turned in."

His Second Wind

Rufe Johnson was heard telling this story: "Yessur, it sure was sh ghost and I run some. De fust mile I made in nuffen, den I burnt the wind for two or free more, and den I sit down on a rail fence to rest, and when I'd 'bout cot my breff I looked over my shoulder and dere was dat ghost ergin, an' it said:

"'We sure did run, Rufe, didn't we?'

"And den I say: 'Yes, Mr. Ghost, we sure did, but we didn't run nuffen to what we's gwine to run.'"

Working Both Ends

"Madam," began the husky knight of the road as he stopped by the back side, "de lady in de next cottage says I should toss up a penny to see whether she gives me a dinner or not."

"Well, what have I to do with that?" asked the busy housewife.

"Nuttin' in particular, mum, only I thought you'd give me de penny to toss up."

RHEUMATISM CURED

Zam-Buk Will Give You Relief!

When you have any deep-seated pain in the joints, the back, the wrists, or elsewhere, place a liberal supply of Zam-Buk on the fingers or on the palm of the hand and rub it in. The penetrating power of this "embrocation" is very great. It kills pain and removes stiffness. Mrs. Frances Wyatt, of 35 Guy Avenue, Montreal, says: "I have found Zam-Buk most soothing and valuable in a very bad case of rheumatism, and also for stiffness of joints and muscles. I suffered long and acutely from rheumatism, and tried one liniment after another in vain. I had cook medicines internally, but it remained for Zam-Buk to effect a cure. I began applying the balm wherever I felt the aches and pains of rheumatism coming on, or felt any stiffness coming. The result was truly wonderful. Zam-Buk seemed to penetrate right to the very seat of the pains, driving them completely out, and now I am quite cured."

The many of the ordinary embrocations and liniments are imperfectly prepared and not sufficiently refined to penetrate even the skin—much less the underlying muscles and tissues. Not totally different. Zam-Buk is so refined, and its essences and juices are so concentrated, that when applied to the muscles for rheumatism soreness, strains, etc., it penetrates very quickly felt.

If rubbed on the chest and between the shoulders in cases of bad cold on the chest, Zam-Buk will give relief. Again, for all kinds of bad lacerations, Zam-Buk will be found a cure for all ordinary kinds of skin disease and injury. It cures eczema, ulcers, ringworm, cold sores, ulcers, abscesses, chapped hands, piles varicose veins, cuts, burns, bruises, etc. 50c. everywhere, or Zam-Buk, 50c., post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. The American opinion of coffee as understood in the English home is not high, and, indeed, the cup that inebrish lodging-houses is esteemed may be understood from the following travellers tale:

It was his first morning in London "apartments," and his landlady came up with the breakfast. As she set down his coffee-cup she opened a slight conversation.

"It looks like rain," she said.

"It does," agreed the American, "and it doesn't even smell unlike it."

The Lure of the Mask

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

In a fashionable quarter of the city there stood a brownstone house, with grotesque turrets, winding steps and glaring polished red tiles. There was a touch of the gothic, of the renaissance, of the old English manor; just a touch, however, a kind of blind man's bluff of a house. A very rich man lived here, but for ten months in the year he and his family fluttered about the social centers of the world. And, with a house like this on his hands, one could scarce blame him. Twice a week during this absence a caretaker came in, flourished a feather duster and went away again. Society reporters always referred to this house as "the palatial residence."

This morning a woman stood in the alcove window and looked down into the glistening street. The venetian red of her hair trapped the reflected sunlight from the opposite windows, and two little points of silver danced in her blue eyes. Ah, but her eyes were blue—blue as spring water in the morning, blue as the summer sky seen through a cleft in the mountains, blue as lapis lazuli, with the same fibers of gold. And every feature and contour of the face harmonized with the marvelous hair and the wonderful eyes; a beautiful face, warm, dreamy, engaging, mobile. It was not the face of a worldly woman; neither was it the face of a girl. It was too emotional for the second, and there was not enough control for the first.

But the prophecy of laughter did not come to pass. The little wrinkles faded, the mouth grew sad, and the silver points no longer danced in her eyes. The pain in her heart was always shadowing. She had seen her fairest dream beaten and crumpled upon the reef of disillusion.

Yet again the smile renewed itself. She was a creature of varying moods. She twisted and untwisted the newspaper. Should she? Ought she? Had she not always regretted these singular impulses? And yet what harm to read this letter and return it to the sender? She was so lonely here. It was like being among a strange people, so long ago was it that her foot had touched this soil. Was it possible that she was twenty-five? Was there not some miscount, and was it not fifteen instead? Would not this war of wisdom and folly be decided ere long?

She opened the paper and smoothed out the folds. "Mme. Angot—There is a letter for you in the mail department of this office." It was so droll! It was unlike anything she had ever heard of—a personal inquiry column, where Cupids and Psyches billed and cooed. The merest chance had thrown the original inquiry under her notice. Her answer was an impulse to which she had given no second thought till too late. She ought to have ignored it. But she was lonely; the people she knew were out of town, and the jest might amuse her.

This man was in all probability a gentleman, since he was a member of a gentlemen's club. But second thought convinced her that this proved nothing. Men are often called gentlemen out of compliment to their ancestors. Still, if this man only saw the affair from her angle of vision, the grotesque humor of it and not the common vulgar intrigue! She hesitated, as well she might. Supposing that eventually he found out who she was? That would never, never do. No one must know that she was in America, about to step into the wildest of wild adventures. No; she must not be found out. The king, who had been kind to her, and the court must never know. From their viewpoint they would have declared that she was about to tarnish a distinguished name, to outrage the oldest aristocracy in Europe, the court of Italy. But she had her own opinion; what she proposed to do was in itself harmless and innocent. But this gentleman who leaned out of the window? She had seen the match flare in the young man's face. Was it the face she had seen in that flash of light that interested her sufficiently to risk the note? Against the dark of the night it had appeared for an instant, clean, crisp, ruddy as a cameo. The face warranted confidence.

She had sung because she had been happy, happy with that transient happiness which at times was her portion. Could she ever judge another man by his looks? She believed not. How she had run! The man, bareheaded, giving chase and the burly policeman across the street!

She stepped down from the alcove, wound the gray veil round the riding crop and tossed them into a corner. Somehow in the daylight the magic was gone from his face, for she had recognized him that first day in the park. He rode well. She touched a bell. A maid appeared.

"Bettina, you will go to the office of this newspaper and inquire for a letter addressed to Mme. Angot. And be quick, for I may change my mind."

The maid was back in a half hour.

"There was a letter, then?" The points were dancing again in the blue eyes.

"You may go. Perhaps," and Bettina's mistress smiled—"perhaps I may let you read it, and answer it after I am done with it. That would be rather neat."

The slight nod was a dismissal, and the maid went about her duties, which were not many in this house.

Meanwhile the lady with the venetian hair toyed with the letter. Club paper! Evidently he was not afraid to trust her. But would he amuse her? The contents gave her a genuine surprise. She ran to the window. Italian! It was written in Italian, with all the flourishes of an Italian born. She turned to the signature—Hillard. So he had signed his name in full? She ruminated. How came such a name to belong to a man who wrote Italian so beautifully? She looked at the signature again. John—Giovanni. She would call him Giovanni. She had been rather clever. To have had the wit to look in the library for the blue book and the club list—not every woman would have thought of that. Then a new inspiration came to her. She sent Bettina for the card basket. She scattered the contents upon the floor and sat down Turkish-wise. She sorted the cards carefully, and, lo, she was presently rewarded. She held up the card in triumph. He had called at this house on Thanksgiving day. He was known, then, to the master and mistress. Very good. She now gave her full attention to the letter, which she had not yet perused:

To the Lady in the Fog:

To begin with, let me say that I, too, have laughed. But there was some degree of chagrin in my laughter. On my word of honor, it was a distinct shock to my sense of dignity when I saw that idiotic personal of mine in the paper. It is my first offense of the kind, and I am really ashamed. But the situation was not ordinary. Ordinary women do not sing in the streets after midnight. As you could not possibly be ordinary, my offense has greater magnitude. To indite a personal to a gentlewoman! A thousand pardons! I doubted that it would come under your notice, and, even if it did, I was sure that you would ignore it. To find a woman with an appreciable sense of humor is rare. To find one who couples this with initiation is rarer still. How you found out my name confuses me.

"Indeed!" murmured the lady.

Doubtless you have the club list in your house. Do you know, when the letter was brought me I saw nothing unusual about the address. It was only when I began this letter that I comprehended how clever you were. There are half a dozen J. H.'s at the club. I tell you truthfully over my own name that your voice startled me.

I was startled because my thoughts were far away. I was dreaming of Italy, where I was born, though there is no more Italian blood in my veins than there is in yours.

"What made him think that, I wonder?"

I therefore write this in a language familiar to us both, certain you could not sing Lecocq's songs in Italian if you did not speak and understand it thoroughly. Signora or signorina, whichever it may be, have we no mutual friends? Are you not known to some one who knows me—some one who will speak for me, my character, my habits?

"It is rather a dull letter so far," said the lady.

You say you sang because at that moment you were happy. This implies that you are not always so. Surely with a voice like yours one cannot possibly be unhappy. If only I might meet you! Will you not do me that honor? Isn't there just a little pure, healthy romance waiting to be given life? Your voice haunts me. Out of every silence it comes to me—"She is so innocent, so youthful!"

She held up the card in triumph.

JOHN HILLARD.

The letter fluttered into her lap. She leaned on her elbows. It was not a bad letter, and she rather liked the boyish tone of it. Nothing vulgar peered out from between the lines. Did he really love music? He must, for it was not every young man who could pick out the melody of an old, forgotten opera. Rather than tempt fate she decided not to answer this letter. It would be neither wise nor useful.

Romance! The word came back to her. With an unmusical laugh she stood up, shaking the letter to the floor. Romance! She was no longer a girl. She was a woman of five and twenty, and what should a woman know of romance? Ah, there had been a time when all the world was romance—romance; when the night breeze had whispered it under her casement window, when the lattice climbing roses had breathed it, when the moon and the stars had spelled it. Romance! She hated the word not less than she hated the Italian language, the Italian people, the country itself. She spurned the letter with her foot and fed the newspaper to the fire.

She went downstairs to the piano and played with strong feeling. Presently she began to sing a haunting, melancholy song by Abt. She was mistress of every tone, every shade, every expression.

The door opened gradually. Crash! The music was over.

"Bettina? Bettina, are you listening?"

"I am always listening." Bettina squeezed into the room. "It is beautiful, beautiful! To sing like that! There will be kings and dukes at your feet!"

"Enough!"

"Pardon, signora. I forgot. But listen. I bring a message. A boy came to say that the rehearsal will be at 4 this afternoon. It is now after 12."

"So late? We must be off."

"And the letter upstairs on the floor?"

"Some day, Bettina, you will enter the forbidden chamber, and I shall have to play Bluebeard. This time, however, I do not mind. Leave it there or burn it," indifferently.

Bettina knew her mistress. She thought best to leave the letter where it lay, forgotten for the time being.

CLIMBING MOUNT ROBSON.

English Mountaineer and Swiss Guide Admits It Is Too Much For Him.

The mountain climber is the only one real aerial artists. Your aviator is not an artist—he doesn't work. The lank-haired chap who occasionally deluges editorial desks with beribboned manuscripts only imagines that his cranium is in the clouds. Really, the rustling femme charmante who strives for the high notes in the social scale approaches more to the climber.

Mr. A. L. Mumm, an Englishman, lately has been trying some high performing in the West at Yellowhead Pass out Rocky Mountain way. He has attempted to foot it up Mount Robson, whose peak pokes its head into the misty vapors seventeen thousand, five hundred feet above terra firma. That's somewhat harder than picking your way upstairs at two a.m. —plus. The mountain climber has no engine to pump him up. He just digs his heels in the mud and climbs every step of the way. And when he gets there, and looks down at the ants and their mole hills! Monarch of all he surveys is your mountain climber in hackneyed phraseology. With head on the dome of heaven, he is statesman and poet rolled into one.

Mr. Mumm did not conquer Robson. He started out there in July, and for two months has been waiting for the snow to melt on the side of the monster. The slides on Robson frightened even his Swiss guide. Mumm has just returned to Edmonton and says that Robson is too much for him. He has given the project considerable of his time. Last year he and L. M. Amery, Earl Grey's journalistic friend, went out to Robson in August. They got into a snow storm and slide reminiscent of the glacial epoch. Messrs. Mumm and Amery climbed into their winter underwear and went home. Says Mumm:

"I think that Robson is a peak that will never be climbed very often." Robson has been captured once. A mild, retired clergyman, Rev. A. Kinney, and packer Phillips of the G.T.P. got to the top—nearly dropping their lives. The jaunt up and back took them two whole days.

Climber Mumm has done some tall work in the Alps. In the Rockies, his altitude record is eleven thousand feet made this summer on a neighboring hill of Robson's.

A Remedy Suggested.

The two things which struck the people who came in contact with Father Vaughan while he stayed in Canada were his vigor and the very practical nature of everything he said. He seemed to be a man who could not possibly deal in abstracts, which characteristic will doubtless keep him in the public eye. When he speaks he may always be counted upon to "say something," and he has the courage of his convictions, even when they do not prove very popular. One little anecdote about him indicates that he is equally practical in his actions, and does not believe in spending his time upon futile trips or in unproductive effort.

His schedule did not allow him to stay in Toronto as long as he would have liked, and his friends wished him to make some changes so as to see more of that city. He consulted Father Burke, who informed him that if he stayed in Toronto it would be necessary to curtail his visit to Niagara Falls.

"Well, I would not mind that," said Father Vaughan, "is there anything to see there except water?"

There is a sequel to this little incident, which shows that the now famous remarks about Protestantism displeased even some members of his own faith. They may have agreed with his views, but experience of living in a community of mixed religions had taught them to use a little tact in voicing some of their convictions. One of these priests, who doubtless feared a little hard feeling in his own parish, heard the remark of the practical English orator concerning Niagara Falls, but he did not seem at all amused by it. He may have resented the reflection upon Ontario's chief side-show, or the Montreal speech may have been worrying him. "He should have been told that it is an excellent place for some persons to soak their heads," was his only comment.

Kathleen Parlow's Success.

Kathleen Parlow, the brilliant Canadian violinist, has been having tremendous success on the continent says Musical Courier. At her recent appearance at the Kurhaus at Scheveningen, she met with extraordinary appreciation. The demand for admittance was so great that the prices for seats had to be extended far beyond the regular rates, but the place was crowded and the audience wildly enthusiastic. Miss Parlow is now in Norway and the press there has acclaimed her to be one of the greatest artists to visit that country. After the termination of her Norwegian tour she will return to Holland to fill some fifteen engagements, after which she will leave for the United States and Canada on a short tour.

The St. Lawrence.

Vessels of 4,000 tons can ascend the St. Lawrence river to Montreal, a distance of 1,000 miles from the sea. Only one other river in the world, the Amazon, is navigable to such a distance for craft as large.

MINISTER FIFTY YEARS

REV. DR. CARMICHAEL OF KING TOWNSHIP HOLDS A RECORD.

He Has Spent Half a Century In the One Community Attending to Three Charges and Speaking English and Gaelic—Is One of the First Graduates of Queen's and Is a Hebrew Scholar of High Repute.

The patriarch of Canadian presbyterianism lives in King Township, County of York, Ontario, and he is the Rev. Dr. Carmichael. For fifty whole years in one community he has been preaching with the Scotch tang in his voice. To five generations he has been sky pilot. He has baptized six hundred and forty children—the children of infants whom he had rocked in the cradle, some of them. And he belongs to the present just as much as the past. He tells the same story to the hired man with the bicycle as he did forty years ago to his father Sunday morning in the boss's pew at the kirk; one difference: his three-hour disquisition has been cut to twenty minutes—O tempore, O mores! "The Doc. has kept himself posted; he speaks Greek everyday, he does." A King farmer pounded his knee with a hand like a ham as he made the above remark the other day. Dr. Carmichael is one of Queen's first graduates, with a year of Glasgow brushing. He is one of the most eloquent men in the councils of his church. A prominent city pastor said the other day that Dr. Carmichael could go down to Queen's or Toronto and fill the chair in Hebrew or church history with the savoir faire of the best intellectual fibre on the staff of the theological colleges.

But this gentle scholar has given the best that is in him to a small, rural congregation. He has shut his eyes to the lure of fashionable, metropolitan ecclesiasticism; he has seen confident, young clerics succeed to good jobs with fat salaries which letters in the King postoffice had offered him. Always there was the Call. And every Sunday morning for fifty years his buggy has been trotted out, and his horse hitched; and he has jogged over corduroy roads and the new highways of macadam to meet his flock—twenty-two miles of a drive, three charges to be visited, three sermons in his black coat to be delivered in English and the soft speech of the Gael, advice to be rendered, consolation given. Then on the week days toilers in the field have seen his buggy—sometimes long, white ribbons at the whip; and often, too, a weary sufferer in dead of night has heard the hoof of the manse horse clicking among the stones.

Nothing ostentatious has there been about Dr. Carmichael's ministry. But there has been a great deal of self-sacrifice. When we speak of city chaps in this connection we call it heroism; for we are a nation of hero-worshippers. In the making of a raw country, we tend to be impressed alone by feats spectacular; if Jones builds a railroad he is a "big man"; who gives a continental about the wrinkled old schoolmaster or the sympathetic minister at home who first inspired the mind of Jones with visions of mighty deeds? Yet, after all, these unadvertised men are the pillars of our civilization.

Sarah Bernhardt's Stage Fright.

The appearance of the famous French actress at the London Coliseum has recalled what she terms "the most acute ordeal of her life." This was in 1879, when she first faced a London audience at the Gaiety. "I had stage fright," she said, "but not the fright that paralyzes, only the kind that drives one wild. This is bad enough, but it is preferable to the other sort. It makes one do too much, but, at any rate, one does something. When I began my part, as I had lost my self-possession, I started on rather too high a note, and when once in full swing I could not get lower again—I simply could not stop. I suffered, I wept, I implored, I cried out, and it was all real. My suffering was horrible; my tears were flowing, scorching and bitter. But the inspiration had come!" Her success was instant and complete. Next morning the papers were full of her triumph.

Drake's Death.

Some colored drawings of the coast of various West Indian islands are in the Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris. The fact that makes the drawings of special value is that they were done from the deck of Sir Francis Drake's ship under his supervision during his last voyage. There is a mournful note on the margin of a drawing of Puerto Bello, off which Drake's flagship Defiance was lying:

"This morning, when the description notid or taken of this lande, beinge the 28 of Januarie, 1595, beinge Wedensdaie in the morninge Sir Francis Dracke died of the bludie flix righte of the ilande of Buena Ventura som six leagues at see."

THE IMPERIAL CORPS.

King Edward's Horse Made Up From All Over Greater Britain.

It is not perhaps sufficiently known that there is in England a regiment which is a living symbol of the spirit of imperial unity — King Edward's Horse. Only a few days ago the regiment entertained at dinner the Queen's Own Canadian Rifles.

Started shortly after the South African war to commemorate the services of the Dominions in the war, the regiment was first known as the King's Colonists. It was considered that the finest memorial the overseas Dominions could raise to the late King was one to which they contributed their personal service. For that reason the present King quite recently approved the name of King Edward's Horse, the King's Over-Sea Dominions Regiment (Imperial Service). King George, who when Prince of Wales was hon. colonel of the regiment, is now its colonel-in-chief. The commanding officer is the able and active Lieutenant-Colonel H. Fortescue, for many years commander of the 17th Lancers.

King Edward's Horse is the one really imperial regiment in existence. It is recruited from over-seas sources, and for this reason has detachments in those centres where young men from the Dominions are mostly found —London and Liverpool—while there are detachments at Oxford and Cambridge which include a number of Rhodes scholars. The roll includes officers, non-commissioned officers and troopers not only from India, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa, but also from Jamaica, Barbados, Trinidad, Bermuda, Bahamas, Mauritius, Burma, Ceylon, Hong Kong, Uganda, Tasmania, the Straits Settlements, and British Guiana.

The regiment is recruited entirely from men with the following qualifications who are resident in Great Britain for a period of not less than four years:—The parents must be resident or have been born in over-seas Dominions or Crown Colonies; the recruit must have been born in the over-seas Dominions or Crown Colonies, or have resided there at least five years. The enlistment is for four years, but this can be curtailed at the discretion of the commanding officer in the event of the man returning home for good.

All the members are under a liability to serve, if ordered with the regiment as a whole, anywhere in the world in case of a national emergency. Uniforms, arms, horses, saddlery, and traveling expenses are provided free to non-commissioned officers and troopers.

The objects of this imperial regiment are numerous: To link together the local forces of the Empire under the conception of a common duty to serve that Empire; as a means to the above end to bring together in its ranks young colonials from all the state, temporarily resident in Great Britain, under the above-mentioned liability, to serve wherever the defence of the Empire may require them (the Territorial forces are for the defence of the British Isles); to give such an efficient elementary military education to young colonials temporarily resident in England as may fit them at once on their return to their homes to serve effectively in their local forces; to create in this regiment, representing all the local forces of the Empire, a visible symbol of the Empire's unity for purposes of mutual defence; to form a rendezvous for all duly accredited members of colonial local forces visiting the Mother Country.

The regiment has still further aims "We are allied since the last Colonial Conference," says the commanding officer, "to a number of over-seas regiments—to the first nine and to the 18th Regiments of Australian Light Horse, also the Cape Light Horse, and in Canada to the 8th Princess Louise New Brunswick Hussars. We hope eventually to organize a system of transfer between these allied regiments whereby, for instance, if a man left King Edward's Horse to return to Australia he would be enabled, ipso facto, to join one of our allied regiments there. This as yet is a pious and sentimental aspiration. But we have hopes that the scheme may soon prove workable. Ample financial support of late has been forthcoming from all quarters of the world, and we are hopeful of largely increasing the strength of the regiment in the near future."

To make a corps like King Edward's Horse thoroughly efficient a continual flow of recruits must be maintained, since a very large proportion of them come to England for three or four years only and then return to their respective homes in the over-seas Dominions. Every young colonial in these isles is urged to make it his ambition to join King Edward's Horse.

Some More Nature Fakes Exposed.

An English scientist who has been observing the habits of the cobra in India, has declared that all stories as to the reptile's love of music are fakes. He admits that music will bring the cobra's head out of his hiding place, but also he says that any kind of high-keyed noise loud enough will act in the same manner in bringing it from its burrow. Beating with a switch on the ground, rattling a chain, or any high-pitched sounds catch its ears and curiosity causes the snake to do the rest. It pays no attention to the pounding of the bass drum or to the lower notes of the flute. As to the reptile's power to fascinate birds with its eyes, Dr. Barnard brands the statement as imaginary.

Kept to the Point.

Lord Tenterden had contracted so inveterate a habit of keeping himself and everybody else to the precise matter in hand that once during a circuit dinner, having asked a county magistrate if he would take venison and receiving what he deemed an evasive reply, "Thank you, my lord; I am going to take boiled chicken," his lordship sharply retorted: "That, sir, is no answer to my question. I ask you again if you will take venison, and I will trouble you to say yes or no without further prevarication."—St. James' Gazette.

OUR MOUNTAIN HERITAGE.

Canada's Alps Constitute Twenty Switzerlands In One.

In estimating the assets of Alberta, Canada, one important item is nearly always omitted—its mountain region. In Eastern Canada and in the United States the Canadian mountains are supposed to lie entirely within the confines of British Columbia. Let us look at the facts. The boundary between these two provinces is defined as the continental watershed. With the swing it takes to the west, it places the largest portion of the great Columbian ice field, said to contain an area of 200 square miles within the Province of Alberta. And so on to the north.

"What does it matter, anyway?" says the "Practical" man who knows it all. "There is no mineral and no money in those mountains." Certainly there is no money at present for anybody except the railway company with brains enough to exploit the mountain centres of beauty. Look at the little republic of Switzerland, which understands the value of mountains to a nation. In 1907, the latest date on which we have authoritive figures, the income to hotel keepers from tourists was over eighty million dollars, and this is steadily increasing. Now, hotel keepers are not the only ones who benefit. The hotels have to be supplied with food and necessaries; horses and carriages are in large demand, and even such a business as the curiosity and "notion" seller becomes important to a degree that is almost incomprehensible to us. The societies of guides, practically trade unions, are important corporations, handling large sums.

Canada possesses 200,000 square miles of high snow-clad ranges, unique in their scenic beauty and Alpine attractions. "Twenty Switzerlands in one," is the oft-quoted remark of the celebrated mountaineer, Edward Whymper. But such comparisons, true as they may be, are really of little value. It is the difference that gives our mountains their charm, not their similarity to those of other mountains of finer outline and of greater height, but there are nowhere such lakes as Louise or O'Hara, or those in the region from whence flows the great Saskatchewan. And so long as there remains inherent in healthy human nature the love of adventure, of exploring the wilderness, Canada's mountains will afford the means of satisfying it. Among the giants of the snow-clad ranges men can get away from their business cares, from themselves, and obtain real recreation.

But is not mountaineering very dangerous? To that one may reply that we take greater risks than those involved in the sport every day in our crowded cities, and think nothing of them, because they are commonplace. A great English schoolmaster, of the end of the nineteenth century, refused to recognize lawn tennis as a school game because there was no danger connected with, and, therefore, no discipline of character. This gives food for thought.

The exploitation of all high ranges the world over: the Alps, the Himalayas, the Caucasus, the Andes, the high Alps of New Zealand, has, in the first instance, been carried out by members of Alpine clubs. The earliest, the parent and most famous of them all, is the Alpine Club of England, organized in 1857, and among the youngest is the Alpine Club of Canada. Before this was started in 1906, there were practically no Canadian mountaineers. A few American citizens, a few English people passing through on their way from India or Australia, along with a few scientists, made up the meagre roll of climbers. Now the club is well on the way to a membership of six hundred, and though started as a national organization, it has become international, with connections reaching to Great Britain, the United States, Australia, South Africa, Switzerland, Holland and Italy. With ramifications spreading throughout the vast area of Canada, the club keeps in constant touch with its members by means of local committees in Vancouver, Calgary, Winnipeg and Toronto. A local committee has also been formed in New York, of which committee the president and vice-president of England's Alpine Club are members.

The "Know-all" sees no sense in a club for climbing mountains. It is surprising, however, how a little knowledge of real—not assumed—facts clears the air.

Canadian Soil In Scotland.

Few visitors to the parade ground of the historic castle of Edinburgh are aware that they stand on what is legally Canadian soil. In 1621, eight years after James VI. went to London, and the two crowns were united, the King, desirous to give an outlet to his countrymen, gave Sir William Alexander of Memaitrie, afterwards Earl of Stirling, a charter of all the country between the River St. Croix, the St. Lawrence, Newfoundland, and New England. This territory was named New Scotland, St. Croix River became the Tweed, and Cape Breton became New Galloway. This new colony for administrative purposes was by a legal friction connected with Edinburgh. In order to raise men to help to found the colony the King instituted the Order of Baronets of Nova Scotia. This hereditary title was to be given to a gentleman of good birth, who arranged to send a certain number of men and to pay a certain sum of money for the expenses of this plantation of New Scotland; and there were many families among the old nobility who had still among them titles of Baronet of Nova Scotia. In 1625, immediately after the death of King James, the Order was instituted and the ceremony took place in the courtyard of Edinburgh Castle. For the purpose of the institution by royal decree the place was declared to be an integral part of the new colony. As the decree has never been annulled it still remains intact and the parade ground is legally an integral part of Nova Scotia.

Lucky to Get That.

Pretty soon lovely woman will be seen with a towel around her head, and man, poor man, will be eating hard-boiled eggs off a biscuit box in the back woodshed.—Brantford Courier.

HE IS A CHESS VETERAN

J. H. BLACKBURNE IS G. O. M. OF THE GAME IN ENGLAND.

Paul Morphy's Career Started Blackburne In the Game, and He Rose Steadily In Reputation Until He Defeated the Great Steinitz — A Series of Winning Events Followed Until He Achieved Championship.

Judging by the record achieved by J. H. Blackburne, the champion chess player of England, who this year celebrates his jubilee as a chess player, times have not changed, we have only become very much more democratic. Instead of merely gratifying the passion for the game of persons of high rank and estate, as the chess players of long ago used to do, and as some of the most famous painters and musicians had to do, the chess player of our time appeals to the people in their thousands, and wanders more diligently than ever, and as frequently and rapidly as our present-day methods of transport will permit him to do so.

In 1859, the meteoric career of Paul Morphy, in his day the greatest of English chess players, excited the admiration of Blackburne, who was then a youth of 17, not even acquainted with the game of chess. He had previously shown some precocious skill as a draughts player, and devoted himself, therefore, to learn the game of chess with an amount of that enviable self-confidence begotten only by youth and genius. In the case of Blackburne, however, the confidence was well justified; for, becoming a member of the St. Peter's Chess Club, Manchester, and also joining the Athenaeum, he challenged, merely for the purpose of testing his strength by the measure of his defeat, a Mr. Pindar, who was considered the strongest player in Manchester. To the great delight of Blackburne and a large circle of chess players who admired his youthful talents, the winner was not Pindar, as was generally expected, but his young and bold challenger. Blackburne's rise in strength was so rapid that shortly afterwards he defeated the same opponent, though conceding him the odds of the exchange. In the same year he won the championship of the Manchester Chess Club, thus confirming the fact, long suspected by his friends, that Blackburne was a player of the highest class. In the year following, 1862, he took part in the International tournament arranged in London in connection with the International Exhibition. Young Blackburne failed to get a prize, but left his mark in the history of chess by defeating Steinitz in their individual encounter. It is not necessary to enumerate the minor successes gained by the player who had thus early in his career established himself as the British champion. It is enough to give his principal successes. In 1868 he gained the first prize and the British Championship at the tournament of the British Chess Association in London. In 1873, in one of the severest and strongest tournaments held in the history of international tournaments, he tied with Steinitz for first prize. In 1874 we find him winning a first prize at a tournament at Simpson's. In 1880 he tied for first prize in the International Tournament at Wiesbaden. In 1881 he gained his greatest success by winning first prize in an International Tournament at Berlin with three games to spare, against such strong competitors as Zukertort, Tchigorin and Winawer. In 1885 he won first prize in an International Tournament at Hereford, and in the following year first prize in an International Tournament promoted by the British Chess Association in London, also in a handicap tournament known as the Black and White Tourney, and so forth. There have been many English players of exceptional strength both before and after Blackburne's appearance who enjoyed the esteem of the chess world, but none either before his time or since have been so universally admired and popular as J. H. Blackburne, owing to the fact that, apart from being one of the world's strongest chess players, he is also one of the world's greatest geniuses. He tried to emulate Morphy, and, accordingly, at an early stage of his career, he trained himself to play a number of games from memory without sight of the board, as Morphy had done before him.

A Gallant Cornet.

Sir George Wombwell, who recently celebrated his golden wedding, is probably best remembered for his gallantry in the Valley of Death at Balaclava. In the memorable charge, though he was not on duty with the 17th Lancers, in which he was a cornet, and extra galloper to Lord Cardigan, he rode on the right flank. Twice he had his mounts shot from under him, but he went to within a hundred yards of the terrible batteries unscathed. It was in those ever-to-be-remembered days that he first enjoyed the close friendship of the Duke of Cambridge, who was with the Guards Brigade.

The C.P.R. Xmas holiday rates start from Nov. 12th.

Miss K. Sargent of Calgary spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Yates.

Let the Indian see the exhibitions but do not make an exhibition of the Indian.

It is expected the annual ranchers dance will take place on Thursday, December 29th.

The season for hunting deer opens in November and continues t l December 15th.

The shrewd buyer always patronises the dealers who tells of his wares in The Call.

D. C. Wishart has one of the most beautiful and useful 1911 calenders yet seen in town.

The Methodists are after Rev. John McDougall's scalp, but he is protecting himself pretty well.

The flood-tide of prosperity is coming all over Bow Valley and now is the time to prepare for it.

J. A. E. Beaupre's big closing sale is proving very satisfactory to Beshears Bros. the salesmen and it is only started.

Lately dozens of geese have fallen before the onslaughts of the the hunters guns and still there are tens of thousands of them left.

According to the Standard the Strathmore Council has some thrilling meetings and some questions are debated with $50 bills held up in the air.

Thanksgiving day was generally observed in Gleichen, the weather was ideal. Many enjoyed driving, others hunting and the big dance wound up a very pleasant holiday.

It would be a good thing if more of our ratepayers would attend the council meetings and hear for themselves the debates on the various questions the town fathers are preparing to handle.

A letter by "Tommy the Apple Expert" has been unavoidably crowded out this issue, but in the next "Tommy" will give his scientific knowledge of how to obtain two crops in a season.

Several valises and overcoats have been stolen on the passenger trains lately and the C. P. R. is making special efforts to catch the theives. In the meantime the travelling public will do well to be careful.

The Gleichen Hockey Club will hold their second meeting tomorrow evening—Friday. All who are interested in anyway in hockey are requested to attend as important business will be transacted.

Col. M. L. Madson will hold his first auction sale on Saturday next, November 5th, at C. J. Bray's store, in order to clear Mr. Bray's stock of furniture to make room for a large shipment of new goods that will overcrowd his big store.

Mrs. A. H. Spurr has returned from Calgary very much improved in health after taking a course of osteopathic treatments from Dr. Church. She is accompanied by Miss Davis of the Columbia hospital who will spend the winter her.

When an Indian quits a job at which he is making from $4 a day up to $10 to spend a month exhibiting himself in a costume with little more than Adam was reported to have worn, it is not surprising that his guardians express a few objections.

It is well known that the Blackfeet Indians are not so poor that anyone need supply them gratis. The Indian can make plenty of money to keep him and his family in food and clothing and always have sufficient over to enjoy himself in this glorious country.

D. R. McLean spent Sunday and Monday visiting his former Gleichen friends and enjoyed some good duck shooting. He was formerly with the Canadian Bank of Commerce staff here and was greatly surprised to see the growth Gleichen has made during his absence of about three years.

J. W. Stewart, who has been with the Bank of Commerce for about eighteen months has been promoted and leaves today for Warner, Alta. "Eva" as he is familiarly addressed by his numerous Gleichen friends will be greatly missed in Gleichen. He was banquetted last Friday evening by Miss Larkin and a number of friends at the Peoples Cafe.

The wife of R. E. Jackson, of Queenstown, presented her husband with a son last week. Both doing well.

Frank Holden, farmer of Gleichen, was made happy last Friday by the arrival of a son. Wife and child are excellent.

As is usually the case on Hollow E'en the "boys" were out for their fun and practical jokes. We have not heard of any damage done, but we are informed that they had a joke with the constable. The latter will have his little "joke" later on.

On Wednesday evening at St. Andrew's Church, Rev. T. Castle held a Band of Hope and there were a large number of children present. This endeavor to give the young people on opportunity of acquiring sound healthy principles and instructive recreation is commendable. The club has now a large membership, and as it is undenominational it ought to be made the means of bringing all the children together in a union of love and friendly amusement.

Mrs. H. Harrison, a resident of Gleichen for a great number of years, left this morning for Armstrong, B.C., where she reside with her brother for some time.

If anyone wanted an ocular demonstration of what a Gleichen crowd can amount to it was only necessary to visit, any day this week, the sale being held at J. A. E. Beaupre's store. In everyway it was a sight to witness, eagerness on all sides to obtain the sacrifices being offered. As one lady has said "It takes days to rub out the vision of the bargains from before the eyes."

Between GEO. STANTON HOLME and WILLIAM H. BEARD, of Gleichen, trading under the name or style of "The Stanton Holme Canadian Stockfood Company."

TAKE NOTICE that under Contract, dated the 25th August, 1910, the said William H. Beard purchased from Geo. Stanton Holme the whole of his (the said G. S. Holme's) interest in the said Stanton Holme Canadian Stockfood business, taking over all stock, etc., including Trade Name.

The said William H. Beard undertaking to pay all liabilities due up to that date, by the said Stanton Holme Canadian Stock Food Company.

All accounts outstanding and due to the said Stanton Holme Company up to date to be paid direct to the said Geo Stanton Holme, his receipt having to be given personally for same.

[Signed] GEO. STANTON HOLME

NOTICE

To whom it may concern:

I, Herbert W. Beard, of Gleichen, a member of the partnership trading under the name and style of "The Stanton Holme Canadian Stock Food Company" hereby declare:

Whereas a public notice has appeared in "The Gleichen Call," a newspaper published in the town of Gleichen, under the heading "Dissolution of Partnership", stating that the said partnership has been dissolved and that I have assumed all the liabilities of the said partnership and directing that all accounts payable to the said partnership be paid direct to Geo. Stanton Holme and that a receipt therefor be accepted from the said Geo. Stanton Holme personally.

That the said partnership has not been dissolved and still exists

That the said partnership still remains liable for its obligations.

That the said Geo. Stanton Holme has no right or authority to receive money due the partnership and give a personal receipt therefor.

Gleichen, October 7th.
